

De La Salle College students take up It's Time to Help project

EnvironmentNational

November 6, 2016 | Times of Malta | 0 0

🕒 1 min read

De La Salle Junior College students were among other pupils from the Czech Republic, Latvia, Germany, Finland and Portugal who participated in the Erasmus+ project It's Time to Help.

The main idea of the project is to instil international cooperation among European schools involved in the Eco-School Programme, to cooperate together within the eco-school structure and to develop new friendships among pupils and teachers.

It also helps to increase the students' interest in culture, traditions and environment of their countries and to compare their previous work in the field of environmental issues, share their experience and ideas and also look for effective solutions to issues related to water, energy, waste, bio-diversity, economical consumer and school environment.

The ITTH project contributes to cross-curricular education and enables all pupils, aged between eight and 16, to develop talent, knowledge, skills and competences in different spheres.

For more information visit <http://itth.webnode.cz/>.